

Jennifer Azzi to Address Work/Life Awards Celebration

“Achieving and Maintaining Balance in Life”

Former Utah Starzz basketball great Jennifer Azzi will deliver the keynote address at the 2003 Work/Life Awards Celebration on Wednesday, March 24, 2004.

Jennifer has won an NCAA Basketball Championship at Stanford University, and was honored with both the Naismith and Wade Trophies. She is an Olympic Gold Medallist and is regarded as one of the best players to ever play the game of basketball.

Off the court Jennifer has taken her unique knowledge of health and wellness to create Azzi Training. Jennifer's fitness camps focus on wellness and life balance. She believes real change comes from the inside out.

The title of Ms. Azzi's presentation is “Achieving and Maintaining Balance in Life.”

The Department of Workforce Services will announce the winners of the sixth annual Utah Work/Life Awards at an Awards Celebration Breakfast at the historic Peery Hotel in downtown Salt Lake City. The Peery Hotel is located at 110 West Broadway (300 South) in Salt Lake City.

“Businesses that take the time to understand and effectively address employee work/life concerns attract and retain the best employees and are able to enjoy sustainable success,” said Lynnette Rasmussen, Director of the Department of Workforce Services Office of Child Care. “Companies are addressing work/life issues because it makes good business sense.”

Companies interested in applying for the 2004 Utah Work/Life Awards can email: worklife@utah.gov or call (801) 526-4321.